A - "I wanted a Golden Ticket, and I always get what I want," she says, princess of the Salt nut fortune. Her father went to extremes to find a Golden Ticket for his demanding daughter. He made his factory employees open hundreds of thousands of Wonka bars until a Golden Ticket was found. "I just hated to see my little girl feeling unhappy like that. I promised I would keep up the search until I could gibe her what she wanted. And finally, I found her a ticket."

B - The only child in a family that is short on money and food, but long on love and respect. He could only hope to find a Golden Ticket in the one Wonka bar that he gets every year on his birthday. As luck would have it, he found the last one Golden Ticket just hours before Wonka was to open his factory gates to the lucky winners.

C - Son of a German butcher, his love of chocolate bars led him to find the first of Wonka's Golden Tickets. As his mother says, "We knew he would find a Golden Ticket. He eats so many candy bars a day, that it was not possible for him not to find one." His hobbies include eating all the chocolate bars and candy he can get his hands on.

D - This 10-year-old girl can now add a Golden Ticket to her 263 trophies and medals. A born competitor, she is among the best in every sport she tries - from karate to gum-chewing. She holds the record for the longest time chewing one piece of gum: three months and counting! Her mother and manager believes she is a lock to win Wonka's special prize. As she puts it, "she is a WINNER!"

E - This 13-year-old has high intellect for his age. Unfortunately, he is the first one to tell you that. Even if he is not a "fan" of chocolate, he liked the challenge of finding a Golden Ticket, and he accurately predicted where the next ticket could be found. "It was easy," he claims. "In the end, I only had to buy one candy bar." He is never far from his computer or his television.
