

Chapter 26 - The Ravens Swoop Over

Then they all ran or flew outside.

The Twits were back with their guns.

“BANG! BANG! Bird pie for dinner!”
shouted Mrs Twit.

Two birds flew down and painted glue on the Twits' heads
before the Twits went inside.

Chapter 27 - The Twits Are Turned Upside Down

“Look!”

Mrs Twit cried,
“The floor is
up there!
We are
on the ceiling!”

“We are upside down!”
Mr Twit cried.

“I feel ill!” Mrs Twit said.

“Stand on your head!”
Mr Twit shouted.

They quickly stood on their heads.
The glue on their hair touched the floor
and the Twits could not move.

The birds and the monkeys
ran inside and laughed.

Chapter 28 - The Monkeys Escape

That evening, Muggle-Wump and his family went to a big wood and built a tree house.

“You can’t stay here,”
the Roly-Poly Bird said.
“It’s very cold in winter.
There is snow and ice on the trees.”

“What can we do?” Muggle-Wump asked.

“In autumn, you can fly to Africa on my back,” the Roly-Poly Bird said.

Chapter 29 - The Twits Get the Shrinks

In the house without windows,
Mr And Mrs Twit stood on their heads
on their sitting room floor.

The strong glue held them upside down.
Slowly, their heads shrank into their necks.
Then...

their necks shrank into their bodies.

Their bodies shrank into their legs.

Their legs shrank into their feet.

And a week later, the Twits disappeared.

